

Introducing the Civil Work Spaces®

PERSONAL RESPECT BAROMETER™

It's no secret that even the best-intentioned person can (on occasion) be a tad uncivil.

Nor is it a secret that certain people may behave in an uncivil manner on a regular basis.

Or that in some work environments — perhaps even your own workplace — incivility is a very real problem.

We are pleased to introduce the Personal Respect Barometer™ — a ground-breaking self-assessment and strategies tool that helps your organization advance civility by expanding staff and leaders' civility-related personal awareness and skills.

Here's how it works:

1. Respondents complete an online assessment that gauges their behaviors in the workplace civility space.

All in one place, the Personal Respect Barometer™ assesses:

- ✓ PERSONAL CONDUCT: Strengths and weaknesses in respondents' personal civility practices.
- ✓ REACTIONS: How respondents act when faced with uncivil workplace behavior.
- ✓ DEALING WITH UNCIVIL BEHAVIOR: Respondents' skill level in addressing workplace incivility constructively.
- ✓ BYSTANDER BEHAVIOR: Respondents' ability to take constructive action when they witness uncivil workplace behavior.

2. Once they have completed the self-assessment, respondents receive a personal, confidential report that is rich with individual strategies based on their responses. In plain language, the report delivers a wealth of indispensable concepts and eye-opening ideas that boost insight and open up new channels for improved civility.
